Lesley M.M. Blume, author of LET'S BRING BACK, an encyclopedia of forgotten gems, is on a crusade to revive rituals from travel's golden age. "During the heyday of the Orient-Express, passengers wore evening clothes to the dining car," she says. "These days, we're more likely to travel in jammies and a baseball cap." Blume may have a hard time wrenching us from our comfy duds, but there are simple ways to make contemporary travel a lovelier experience. Her suggestions: postcards, lap robes, and world-tour honeymoons. Sign us up (Chronicle Books, $20).
